

Vandals Hit Gazebo

Vandals, who have had a successful summer at the East Kildonan Centennial Park, struck again last week.

On Tuesday night they, apparently, took keen delight in tearing apart the Margaret Laidlaw Hood Memorial gazebo. Damage was estimated at approximately $200.

Eighteen-foot long 2x12 boards, which comprise the roof of the gazebo, were smashed, as well as portions of the walls.

Shrubs were also pulled up and destroyed.

Earlier this summer vandals, on different occasions, damaged property to the extent of $300 to 400.

Picnic benches have been broken and stolen, plastic skylight domes in the service building were smashed; wood garbage disposal containers smashed; toilets plugged with gravel; maintenance building broken into and tools, plus 30 locks, were stolen, and windows broken.
