Drive-In Space For 720 Cars At New Theatre

A new drive-in theatre, located at Eldorado avenue on the Henderson highway, is scheduled to open "in the near future," it was announced by Harry Gray, Lyceum theatre manager, Tuesday. Actual opening date will depend on weather and other factors, he said.

The drive-in, which will be known as "The Eldorado," will accommodate 720 cars on 12 ramps arranged in the new fan-shape style now popular in United States.

Also operated in connection with the theatre will be a concession bar of the "breezeway" type. It will be housed in a building 70 feet long, with open doors at each end, and long counters to permit quick service to patrons. Rest rooms, projection room and staff dressing rooms will also be in the building.

Motto of the theatre will be, "A little bit of the west in East Kildonan," and a modified western motif will be used. Ushers and runners will wear cowboy costumes, and the concession building will be of semi-rustic architecture.

Screen of the Eldorado will be about 60 feet wide, and latest type lenses and lens equipment will be used to give good picture definition to the greatly magnified image produced. Individual speakers provided will be of the latest all-weather type.
