

Move Out Oil Refinery, Kildonan Delegates Ask

A delegation representing the four wards of East Kildonan asked the municipal council Monday night that an oil refinery at Munroe and Watt streets be removed from the municipality "in the interests of the health of children and residents."

The resolution drafted at a special ratepayers meeting on Jan. 5 objected to the building of the oil refinery near a school, claimed that the refinery constituted a fire hazard, gave off offensive odors at times, and resolved that it find another location outside the municipal boundaries.

Council pointed out that the industry in question, the Radio Oil Refineries, limited, own their land and it was hardly possible to order any person or private company to pack up and leave their own location.

Acting Mayor F. W. Dryden pointed out that no consideration had been given the refinery since council had received a petition from the ratepayers, and advised the delegation to re-word their resolution and present it to council again.

Control Of Pumping Stations

Council authorized entrance into an agreement with the greater Winnipeg sanitary district regarding effective control of operation and maintenance of sewage pumping stations. Cost and personnel is to be paid by the municipality and the district will assume responsibility for direction and control.

The proposal was made in a letter from the Winnipeg Diking board, containing recommendations by the chairman of the Municipal Engineers committee.

Council also passed bylaws providing for assessment of costs of paving and widening certain East Kildonan streets, including parts of Henderson highway, and also along the course of Broder Drive and Roosevelt Place.
